AUTOMOBILES ON MACADAM ROADS

AUTHORITIES HAVE BEEN INVESTIGATING.

SKILLED PHOTOGRAPHERS

Will Present Results to the Meeting in Paris When It Is Held

Washington, May 15.—A two-ton automobile moving at something in excess of a mile a minute, while an impenetrable cloud of foggy rock dust hung to the horizon and marked the speeding course of the big machine, was the sight witnessed by travelers on the famous cutoff road a dozen miles from Washington on Thursday, April 23.

The seemingly pronounced violation of the speed ordinance was commuted by two of the nation's federal departments; Agriculture and War; however, the rushing motor cars having been pressed into regulation by L. W. Page, director of the office of public roads and Dr. Albertson S. Cushman, assistant director, in the effort to determine the effects of automobile traffic upon macadam highways, and the stretch of thoroughfare was placed at their disposal by war department officials.

While the racing car and others of various weights and types made various trips over the selected stretch of a mile and a half at varying rates of speed, from 5 to 65 miles an hour, a corps of skilled photographers, equipped with the most modern devices for photographing vehicles at very high speeds, made accurate records of various tests.

It has long been known to highway engineers that automobiles were rapidly shortening the lives of the rock surface roads of the world, and many experiments have been made in the past six or seven years to determine the actual cause of the damage done. To understand how the soft road tires of the modern motor car can work an injury to a surface that not only withstands, but improves under the constant passing and repassing of vehicles with iron tires, one must be apprised briefly of the theory of which, first Trautman of Limoges, and later McAdam of Ayr, worked when giving such highways to the world. They reasoned that a road surfaced with bits of stone would improve under wear, because the iron tires of the passing vehicles would constantly crush the stones and form rock dust particles that, these rock dust particles would not merely fill in all the interstices between the stones but would also form a surface dust binder, the wettings and rollings tending to cement the dust into a shell-like surface and thus make the entire road one trifle-withstanding, water-shedding mass.

They reasoned well and wisely. The macadam roads lived up to the theories of their inventors and improved with the passing years until the advent of the automobile. It was but a short time after it came into vogue that highway engineers in all civilized lands learned that a new condition was confronting them and that established customs were being annulled. The trouble was quickly traced to the automobile and it was studied. It was soon noted that the soft rubber tire was the highway menace. It crushed no rock itself and therefore contributed no quota of the needed surface dust binder, while the tremendous tractive force of the rear wheels drew up the dust made by the iron tire wheels and sent it whirling away over adjacent lands.

Those who witnessed the experiments near the national capital could not doubt for a moment that the various road experts all over the world are correct. In the opinion that very rapidly driven automobiles are rapidly tearing up the surface of the macadam road, for not only were huge clouds of dust lifted into the air and blown off the road, but careful examination showed that the material under the wheel tracks of the machine was distinctly loosened and ravaged even during the short period of these tests.

No such effects were noticeable after the passing of iron tire vehicles; the series of tests beginning with the passing of a horse drawn vehicle. This was photographed as it moved along and also as the wagon tires passed a given mark. Then the automobiles were sent over the course. The first was a heavy weight touring car moving at five miles an hour. A series of pictures was made of that car on its many journeys at varying rates of speed until its maximum of 45 miles an hour was attained. Then the work was taken up by the huge racer, which tore down the road first at a speed of 50 miles an hour, then at 55, 60, and finally at 65. It fairly lifted the road surface material as it sped along, regular ridges of rock dust rising in front of the rear wheels and floating away in blinding clouds. Other tests were made and other pictures taken of various types of heavy Limousine cars and runabouts. It was plainly noticeable and was commented on that the automobiles when moving at the slow rates of speed equal to the speed made by horse-drawn vehicles made very little dust, the theory that fast speeding automobiles are responsible for road surface destruction being pretty thoroughly substantiated by these means.

The result of this interesting bit of road work will be carefully studied and put together in a paper or papers to be presented to the international road congress which will meet at Paris on October 11; for so far-reaching are the ravages of the automobile on the wonderful roads of France that that country has urged highway engineers of all lands to assemble at her gay metropolis in the fall to take up the problem and arrive for a solution of it.

PEACE-MAKER HURT IN A STREET BRAWL

James Quinn Received Half a Brick in Left Eye and Was Kicked in Mouth for Trying to Intervene.

Andrew Peters and John Shikenski, intoxicated and alleged to have been looking for trouble, found it at the corner of High and West Milwaukee streets at midnight. They were about to take the measure of "Moose" Bell and "Red" Ryan when James Quinn interposed in the role of a peace-maker. The peace emissary, as he is quite frequently called in street brawls, was the only one to get hurt. According to the allegations of witnesses, Mr. Peters, incensed at the interference, snatched Quinn in the left eye with a half section of a brick and after the man who had tried to fix things lay prostrate on the ground, kicked him in the mouth. At any rate Quinn had to be taken to Dr. Ellfeld to have the cuts sewed and dressed. In municipal court this morning Peters and Shikenski pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness and paid fines and costs amounting to $10 each. Peters admitted that he had been very drunk and had only a hazy recollection of what happened. Shikenski, however, was quite certain that he got into trouble only after great provocation.

No such effects were noticeable after the passing of iron tire vehicles; the series of tests beginning with the passing of a horse drawn vehicle. This was photographed as it moved along and also as the wagon tires passed a given mark. Then the automobiles were sent over the course. The first was a heavy weight touring car moving at five miles an hour. RE-NUMBERING PLANS DIAGRAMS FINISHED

Atlas Maps Have Been Filed With City Clerk—Provides for Convenient and Elastic System.

According to recommendations made by a committee of the common council and adopted on March 4, 1907, City Engineer C. V. Korch was instructed to submit a plan for renumbering the city. He subsequently did so, suggesting a modification of the so-called Philadelphia plan which would include the assignment of 100 numbers to each block, or a greater or lesser number whenever necessary to maintain the range and keep the alignment so that on parallel streets the numbers will correspond. As a general plan one number was to be assigned to every 22 feet of frontage. The task of preparing an atlas map of some 20 or more sections on the scale of 80 feet to the inch has been completed and George J. Davis yesterday filed the set of handsome cloth blue-prints with the city clerk. The general plan has already been accepted and it now remains for the common council to draw up and pass an ordinance putting the new re-numbering scheme into effect.

COUNTY BOARD ENDS SESSION

SOME $25,000 APPROPRIATED FOR ROADS AND OTHER PURPOSES.

NOT TO MULCT S. B. KENYON

Resolution Transferring $800 of Sengmiller is Withdrawn—Today's Business.

It is estimated that appropriations totaling $25,000 for road building and various other purposes will have been made by the county board of supervisors, when the session comes to a close this afternoon. As the body has been in conference for four days, each member will be entitled to $12 and mileage for his services.

Turtle's Road Appropriation. There was a heated argument late yesterday afternoon, over the town of Turtle's special road appropriation of $1,325, calling for a like amount of county aid, the sum being about $1,000 more than that set aside by most of the other towns. The question was raised as to whether the law permitted any one district to appropriate more than $1,000 in a single year.

Chairman Gettle held that the limit was $2,000, while District Attorney J. L. Fisher and Supervisor M. P. Richardson construed the law to mean that $1,000 was the maximum. Supervisor Moore of Mankola, in order to save the way for a resolution reducing the size of Turtle's slice of the pie, moved that the county's appropriation of the duplicate amount be reconsidered. The vote was so close that he appealed from the chair's decision that it was lost and called for an aye and no ballot. This was taken and the chair's decision was sustained. However, a resolution making it the sense of the board that hereafter no town should call for more than $1,000, county aid in a single year, met with almost unanimous favor.

No Light Plant for Jail. Committee No. 15 reported adversely on the proposition of establishing a lighting plant in the county jail, on the grounds that the plan was not feasible because there was no one to take care of such an apparatus. The sum of $300, or so much thereof as may be needed, was appropriated for the purpose of installing a new entrance and swinging door on the second floor of the courthouse. An appropriation of $800 was made for the purpose of having the outer wood and metal work of the courthouse and county jail painted.

The courthouse received its last coat of paint twelve years ago. A resolution submitted by Supervisor Paul and passed yesterday, the duties of the district attorney in the matter of giving advice to town chairmen on road-building questions.

Train Late—Session Delayed. The train from Edgerton was late this morning and Chairman L. E. Gettle was not on hand at half-past ten o'clock when the forenoon session was to have been called to order. He was still missing at 11:30 and County Clerk Howard Lee handled the gavel long enough to permit the passage of a motion directing Supervisor Livermore to act as temporary chairman. Supervisor Woodruff submitted resolutions of respect for the late Robert Barlow who passed away soon after the January meeting and the same were adopted.

Afternoon Session. By resolution this afternoon the chair was instructed to appoint a special committee on highways to be known as Committee 18. The personnel is as follows: S. S. Jones, Chairman, George Woodruff, and J. A. Paul. The duties of the highway commissioner were defined by a special committee consisting of S. S. Jones, A. C. Gray, and J. B. Henry. On motion it was decided to petition the Rock county representatives in the legislature to use their influence to have the law relating to roads so amended that provision could be used for using some of the county aid money for drainage purposes. $500 county aid was appropriated for the town of Center. The building committee was instructed to sell the courthouse chairs. District Attorney Fisher submitted an opinion advising the county board to pass a resolution requiring the towns to deposit their money with the county treasurer and requiring this to be done before any of the county aid money can become available. Supervisor Livermore withdrew his resolution of yesterday providing for the transfer of $800 from Poor Commissioner Kenyon's board to Poormaster Seegmiller's till, and in place thereof the same sum was appropriated from the general fund. Dr. G. C. Wauke was appointed county examiner of the blind.

ADMIRAL BICKNELL RETIRED FOR AGE

Entered Army in 1864 and Has Served Ever Since—Served in Japan.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., May 15.—Rear Admiral George H. Bicknell, for more than a year past commandant of the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H., was placed on the retired list today by operation of the age limit. Captain Edwin H. Moore, a member of the navy examining and retiring boards in this city, has been named to succeed Rear Admiral Bicknell as commandant at Portsmouth.

Rear Admiral Bicknell leaves behind him a record of active service of exceptional interest. He was born in New Jersey, May 15, 1846, and received his early education in private schools in Indiana. He entered the army in 1864 and served as first lieutenant in the volunteer infantry during the Morgan raid. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1868 and for three years served on the Atlantic fleet. Some of the most interesting experiences of his early career occurred in Japan. He was present at the opening of the ports of Kobe and Osaka to trade and was in the landing party that repelled
the attack of Prince Ito at Kobe.

In the early '80s he cruised from Montevideo to Hound's Island, about seven thousand miles, working and rescuing about thirty survivors of the shipwrecked bark, Trinity. During the Spanish war, as commander of the steamer Niagara, Commander Bicknell cooled the vessels of Admiral Samp-son's squadron while on their way to the bombardment of San Juan, and took his station during the bombardment of Point Salinas, to guard against the approach of gunboats from the westward. In December, 1898, Commander Bicknell was in command of the Monocacy on the Asiatic station and cruised to Han Kow and other river ports of China, taking Minister Conger and his suite to visit the two viceroys of the river provinces.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TRY FOR THE PRIZE

Inter-Academic Literary Examinations
Will Be Held at Appleton
Friday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Appleton, Wis., May 15.—Nine North Division, Milwaukee, high school pupils will try for the $400 in cash prizes to be distributed among the twelve winners in the inter-academic literary examinations to be held next week Friday at Lawrence university. The nine entered from the Milwaukee school were enrolled yesterday afternoon and are as follows:
Wallace Beck, Hazel Roberts, Walter
Dammann, Leon Battig, Herman
Helen, Hans Pettermann, Max Scheeler and Alfred Shupe. Up to date fifty-seven pupils from about twenty high schools of the state have entered and there is every indication that this number will be more than doubled before next Friday morning.

Principal O'Sell of the Oaklawn high school yesterday afternoon entered three of his pupils and it is said that four or five more from that city will be entered next week. Next to Milwaukee, Oaklawn will probably have the largest delegation of students in the contest. The three now entered are Oaklawn are Miss Mina Edwards, Miss Marie Metz and Miss Gertrude Meyer.

NEIGHBORS 'KNEW' HER HABITS.

Matter That Puzzled 'Mrs. Lawton' Really Was Quite Simple.

When the Lawtons had lived in Willow park about a month they were invited to a succession of little dinners at the houses of their new neighbors.
Mr. Lawton was on a dyspeptic's diet, and Mrs. Lawton was endeavoring to reduce her weight. "I suppose we shall have to eat all sorts of things we don't wish, or else seem rude," said Mrs. Lawton, mournfully, as they set out for the first dinner.

To their growing surprise the bill of fare placed before them at each dinner, although not remarkably varied, was composed of such dishes as they could both enjoy.

"I don't see how you all hit on just the right things, when Mr. Lawton and I are such difficult guests," said Mrs. Lawton in a burst of confidence one afternoon when the neighbors were taking tea with her.

The ladies looked at each other, and then one of them spoke.

"You know Mary Ellen, who comes to wash for you Tuesday mornings?"
she said. "Well, I have her Mondays, and Mrs. Green has her Wednesdays, and she brings for Mrs. Porter Thursdays and scrubs for Miss Homer Fridays, so you see—"

Her voice trailed off into silence, but Mrs. Lawton no longer wondered;
she "saw."—Youth's Companion.

CHALLENGE HAS SPEEDY ANSWER FROM CHICAGO

CHAIRMAN OF SPORT OF WESTWARD HO CLUB WANTS

HOME AND HOME GAME

The Only Young Old Team of the State to Meet Chicago Men of Equal Age.

This morning's mail brought an acceptance of the open challenge of the twelve members of the Shinnelap Golf club, who are over fifty and recently issued a challenge to all teams of men of a similar age, from the chairman of the Sports and Games committee of the Westward Ho Golf club of Chicago. It is to be a Home and Home contest and will doubtless be arranged for Saturday afternoon during the early summer.

The letter is sent to J. L. Wilcox, secretary of the local club, by A. T. Packard and is as follows: "On behalf of the Westward Ho Golf club, I accept your open challenge for a Home and Home match of veterans and while of course modestly uncertain of the result, can assure you of a cordial welcome, when it comes to West Ho's turn. In brief if our acceptance is accepted by you we will be glad to arrange for terms of fifty years or over forty. Will Be Accepted."

Secretary Wilcox was of the opinion that the challenge acceptance would be acceptable to the members of the team whose names were published yesterday and thought that games would be arranged for Saturday, one at Janesville and one at the Westward Ho course near Chicago. The ready acceptance of the open challenge may lead to others coming in and the Young Old team will have their hands full to meet all engagements.

Many New Members. Many new members, both associate and active, are joining the club this spring and many ladies are becoming members, simply for the privileges of the club house. The Home committee is making special arrangements for the entertainment of the associate members and the summer promises to be a most promising one.

WHO KNOWS MAN REPORTED KILLED?

Letter From Settlement, Arkansas, Brings a Word of Tragedy in That District.

From the following letter received from Settlement, Arkansas, a man who purchased a ticket from Janesville to Portland, N. M., via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, was killed 100 miles south of that town recently with no means of identifying him. The letter is dated Settlement, Ark., May 11. It is as follows: "Who is the man who had a ticket from Janesville, Wis., to Portland, New Mexico via the C. and N. W. railroad? No name, no letter to tell his name. He was killed by a train. The train he was on came in and was standing on the north track and a train of the south came in on the south track and caught him as he walked behind to catch his own train. He was going south to New Mexico. The flat train cut him into little bits. He had $100 on his person. Was well dressed and between forty-five or fifty. I live in Chicago and will be in your town in three months." Signed F. SMITH.

SALOON-KEEPERS WARNED BY CHIEF OF STATE LAWS

Question of Keeping Open on Sunday is Definitely Decided by Order Issued Today.

Numerous complaints having been received by Chief of Police George Appleby during the past week that certain saloons were closed on Sunday and others open, despite strict orders to keep all places of liquid refreshment closed, Chief of Police Appleby issues the following open letter to the saloonkeepers of the city:

To All Saloonkeepers: I have had a number of complaints and some of them came from saloonkeepers themselves, that a number of saloonkeepers are disregarding the Sunday closing. Now I wish to say that the law forbids your selling on Sunday and it is the order of His Honor the Mayor that all saloons are kept closed and if I catch anyone selling on Sunday I shall certainly bring them before the Court. Old scrap quilts quilted in neat design, or anything you wish. The work is done by power machines, using J. P. Coats best thread, any color desired, or silk if ordered. The sewing is done in beautiful floral and scroll designs or in specially ordered figures. By this method a quilt or comforter is completed in a hour and a half, making it much more durable than the old ways of quilting. Sanitary cotton of the best grade is used throughout. To introduce this industry in Janesville special prices will be offered for the next 30 days. They offer to quilt any quilt for $1.50, and any comforter for $2.00. Call and see samples of the work done.

FIND JAWBONES IN THE CELLAR

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY MADE IN GUINNESS HOUSE RUINS.

MAY BE BLOW TO DEFENSE

Fragments Possibly from the Woman's Skull—Bartillon Measurements of Helgelein Compared with Body.

Laporte, Ind., May 15.—Portions of human jawbones and a piece of skin on which traces of hair are apparent and which may prove to be a part of human scalp were found late Thursday in the cellar of the Guinness farmhouse. The prosecuting officers of the county declared that these relics are the most valuable to their case that have yet been discovered. Even Ralph N. Smith, the prosecuting attorney, broke silence on this occasion, exclaiming, after viewing the bones:

"Well, this case is certainly getting stronger."

From Jaw of Human Being.
There was a hurried call for the physicians who have been assisting the coroner when the specimens were brought to town. The meeting was held in the office of Dr. J. H. Williams Meyers.

"The pieces of bone are from the upper jaw of a human being," said Dr. Meyers in the evening. "One seems to have been from the right jaw and the other from the left, although this point has not yet been determined. It is impossible to determine the nature of the skin or hair. It may have come from some animal or it may have been a portion of some one's scalp."

If the doctors had conclusively that the jaws to which the fragments belonged were human, the contention of the defense that there is doubt as to the identity of the adult body found after the fire will be given a hard blow. The circumstances will then tend to show that the fire had really destroyed the skull of Mrs. Guinness, thus accounting for the disappearance of the head of the corpse.

Helgelein Measurements Compared.

The Bartillon measurements of Andrew Helgelein, forwarded here by the warden of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater, were compared Thursday with the corpse unearthed on the Guinness farm. The work was performed by Flava Harvey, Bartillon expert of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, and James Reid, warden of the same institution. They returned there without submitting a report to Coroner Mack, but it is asserted that they found that the two sets of figures conform closely. The shrinkage and mutilation of the corpse is regarded as accounting for the minor discrepancies which are said to have appeared.

H. H. Worden, one of the attorneys for Lamphere, received an anonymous letter to which he attaches some credence. The writer named a resident of this vicinity as a man who knows much about the Guinness farm and advises that he be arrested. The attorney withheld the name of the person suspected.

San Francisco, May 15.—Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, added another victim to his long string Thursday night by defeating Rudolph Unholz, the rugged boxer from South Africa, in the eleventh round. The fight was Gans' all the way through. He systematically beat down Unholz and the referee interfered in the eleventh round as Unholz was then practically knocked out.

GLAD WHEN FUN IS OVER

OFFICERS OF FLEET ANXIOUS TO GET TO SEA AGAIN.

Month of Entertainments Has Sadly Diminished Discipline and Efficiency Aboard Vessels.

San Francisco, May 15.—San Francisco's entertainment of the Atlantic fleet is drawing to a close and the ships will set sail for Puget sound Monday morning at ten o'clock. The three days of steaming at sea are looked forward to by the officers with genuine pleasure as a relief from the arduous social duties that recently have been imposed upon them.

A solid month of banquets, balls, receptions, teas, parades, luncheons and other entertainments, while wonderfully expressive of California's hospitality and joy over the coming of the battleship squadrons, has wrought havoc to discipline and efficiency aboard the vessels. Executive officers are complaining of conditions aboard and declare that much of the splendid efficiency attained during the long cruise has been almost wiped out.

The work that could be done with the reduced forces, the executive officers declare, is seriously interfered with by the presence of thousands of sightseers aboard. The officers realize the value of having the public and become interested in the navy and they are very hospitable in their welcome to them, but at the same time the disadvantages of interrupted work and discipline on such a long tour of merrymaking and sightseeing as the past month has afforded stand out forcibly in the minds of the men who are responsible for efficiency and accomplishment.

Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas has been most gracious to his hosts everywhere. The admiral, however, could not conceal the pleasure with which he looked to the relief that would be his with the hauling down of his flag of command from the battleship Connecticut Friday. Admiral Thomas will not retire until October next, but he is stepping aside at this time to enable Admiral Sperry, who is to take command, to organize his staff and make his plans for the remainder of the cruise while the ships are still in port.

Nebraska's Supporters Do Not Carry Out Threat to Bolt—Wyoming
for Him—Taft Wins
Oregon.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—The Democrats of Minnesota Thursday formally endorsed Gov. John A. Johnson as a presidential candidate and at the same time, by a vote of 772 to 160, refused to declare in favor of William Jennings Bryan as second choice.

The followers of Mr. Bryan did not carry out the threat which they had so often made during the last ten days—that they would bolt and hold a rump convention if their candidate were defeated before the committee on credentials, or if they were not able to secure a partial endorsement of their leader. They made a sturdy fight for their man, and when they had been overwhelmingly defeated, remained quietly in their seats and made no motion to leave.

The Johnson men were generous in their victory and declared in their platform that while they entertained "an affection for and confidence in the integrity and ability of William J. Bryan," they believed that Johnson was a man better calculated to bring success to the Democratic party and was first entitled to the support of Minnesota.

Wyoming for Bryan.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 15.—The Democratic state convention Thursday selected delegates to the national convention and instructed for William J. Bryan. Resolutions were adopted favoring the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; favoring an amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law excepting labor unions from the effect of its provisions, and opposing the forest reserve policy of the present national administration.

Oregon Republicans for Taft.

Portland, Ore., May 15.—Oregon's eight delegates to the Republican national convention were instructed for Secretary Taft Thursday at the state and congressional district conventions. The three conventions were absolutely in control of the Taft people, led by Senator Charles W. Fulton's friends.

Alaska Republicans Split.

Ketchikan, Alaska, May 15.—Amid tumultuous scenes, the Alaskan Republican convention split Wednesday night, with the result that contesting delegations will be sent to the national convention at Chicago. Both conventions ratified the platform adopted at Juneau, endorsing W. H. Taft for president.

Taft Wins California.

Sacramento, Cal., May 15.—The Republican state convention Thursday night instructed the delegates at-large for Taft.

North Dakota in Line.

Minot, N. D., May 15.—The Republican state convention of North Dakota Thursday elected eight delegates to the national convention at Chicago and instructed them to vote for the nomination of Secretary Taft.

Republicans of Montana.

Butte, Mont., May 15.—The Montana state Republican convention Thursday endorsed the policies of President Roosevelt and instructed its six delegates to the national convention at Chicago for Secretary Taft, despite the objections of the supporters of Gov. Hughes and President Roosevelt, who constituted no small part of the convention.

Washington Endorses Taft.

Spokane, Wash., May 15.—A dramatic and unexpected feature of the Washington Republican state convention Thursday was the adoption of a local option plank by a vote of 500 to 258. The convention adopted unanimously a resolution endorsing Taft.

HITS AT CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Bitter Attack by Bishop Neasey at Methodist Conference.

Baltimore, Md., May 15.—Another bitter attack upon the Roman Catholic church characterized the meeting of the general conference Thursday, when Bishop Neasey scored the record of that church in South America and accused it of mingling in the politics of this country, declaring that its influence is felt in our state and municipal governments and at Washington.

Another Incident of the Day Was a Blow Aimed at the Field Secretaries of the Foreign Missions Society in a Memorial Introduced in the Committee on Foreign Missions, asking that they be abolished. Motives of economy are said to have inspired the memorial.

Tragedy at Coney Island.
New York, May 15.—Two men were shot and almost instantly killed and a woman wounded at Coney Island Thursday night, victims of the jealousy of a young Italian. The man who did the shooting is said to be Louis Poggi, and the dead men are Max Swelback, aged 25, of Brooklyn, and an unidentified man. The woman, only slightly wounded, is Carroll Terry, 25 years old, a singer in a Coney Island concert hall.

STAND BY YOUR OWN TOWN

What Two Well Known Writers Think of Mail Order Traders—Some Food
For Reflection by Woman Who Buys
Through the Catalogues.

We are face to face with the fact that the commercial strength of the country town, the natural social and business center of every rural community, is being gradually undermined by the "peculiar" competition of the so called catalogue houses in the larger cities. Last year at least $250,000,000 that should have gone to the retail merchants of the middle west was sent away from home to these mail order concerns. This is serious. It is doubly serious because it is a cash business and a continual drain on the finances of the whole rural community, for none of it ever comes back. The money that the farmer or the wage earner spends with the retail merchant in his home town remains in circulation in the neighborhood, but the money sent away is like so much lifeblood lost to the community. It cannot even be reached by the tax collector to be made to bear its share of the cost of public improvements and public protection.

Every good citizen owes allegiance, first, to his family; second, to the community in which he lives, and, third, to the nation. This is the theory, according to Richard A. Haste, a well known writer on home trade topics.

But when the nation is in peril and calls for help men sacrifice both family and friends for the nation's good. We call this patriotism. And the first duty of the loyal citizen is to the nation, for it embraces both the community and the family welfare.

We don't think much of the men who ran away to Canada to escape their duty during the days of the civil war. We don't think much of the woman who neglects her family that she may entertain her friends. Selfishness, when home is the object, is almost a virtue. What are we to think of people who pass up their town and do their trading in the cities in the hope of saving a few cents? If they live in the town, if they do lawyers, doctors, preachers, teachers, bankers or common wage earners, it is from the town they get their living; if they be farmers, it is the town that affords them markets and the good things of modern civilization, and, more than that, it is the town that gives value to their farms. What shall we think of such people if they deliberately ignore the allegiance they owe to the community for protection and the very bread they eat and send their money, some of which may come directly from the public purse, as in the case of school teachers, to the cities for the things they can get at home? What shall we think of them?

This is what William Allen White thinks of them in Emporia, Kan. It is straight talk, but is has the ring of good sense in it:

"The man who buys his goods of a mail order house and expects his neighbors in Emporia to buy goods of him or buy labor of him or to buy professional service of him is economically a leech. He is sucking industrial blood out of the town and gives none back. He sends his profits out of town like a Chinaman and has no more right to a standing in the community than a foreigner. We are all neighbors industrially in this town, and the man who sends away for his goods is not one of us. He is of another industrial system and deserves no man's support in Emporia."

What is true of Emporia, Kan., is true of every other town in the United States. One of the primal obligations any good citizen owes to the community in which he lives is that of reciprocal trade. It is only thus that the community interests of the country can be maintained.

This buying of catalogue houses and through soap clubs is a fact that has grown up in the commercial garden like a rank weed. It grew and flourished because there was no attempt made to keep the garden clear of such growths. People have been so busy about other things that they simply forgot the obligations they are under to their neighbors and to themselves as a community. And even since there has been a marked awakening to the need for civic improvement, for building up the industrial and ethical interests of the home town, the workers seem to have overlooked the most important feature of it all—the protection of the retail trade of the home merchant.

The women's clubs all over the country have been doing a remarkable work in molding public sentiment along right lines. They have been leaders in movements for beautifying the home, the streets and the town. They have led the fight for better sanitation and in many localities are a potent force for honesty in municipal affairs. But as yet they have not taken up the protection of the life of the home town, on which the success of all their other measures must depend.

Give Street Trees Plenty of Room.
With a strip scarcely one yard wide on which the sun may shine and through which the air may penetrate, is it any wonder street trees are usually a sorry lot? When now town sites are plotted, provision should be made for shade trees, especially dedicating more room for their proper growth.

THE THIRD BASEMAN.

He is a Most Important Factor
In Winning Games.

WHICH ONE IS THE LEADER?

Many Think Steinfeldt of Chicago Nationals, Others Bradley of Cleveland. Leach and Devlin Stars of the First Order.

When asked what position on the diamond he regards as the most difficult except that of the pitcher the ball player will invariably reply, "Third base." The demand for skilled guardians of the difficult corner is far greater than the supply. The past five or six years have developed few classy third sackers. Pitching phenoms have been unearthed, brilliant outfielders have been discovered in the bushes, sensational shortstops and clever first and second sackers have been picked up, but the scouting trips for third basemen have, as a rule, resulted in failure.

Few, if any, teams without a star third baseman have ever won a pennant. Considering the great demand and the big money a clever player can get, it is surprising that more capable men are not developed for the difficult corner. There is no player on the diamond who has to have his wit about him more than the third baseman. He must be able to think quickly, have a good line on the various hitters, be fast in order to come in quickly on the bunt and slow infield hits, and last, but not least, have a whip of steel largely because of his distance from first base.

Now comes the question who is the best third baseman in the two major leagues today? Is it Harry Steinfeldt of the Chicago Nationals, or Bill Bradley of the Cleveland, or Tommy Leach of the Pittsburgh, or Jimmy Collins of the Philadelphia Americans. The writer's opinion is that the preeminence of the third sackers lies among the following three: Tommy Leach, Bill Bradley and Harry Steinfeldt. Leach holds his position beautifully and throws well, has a great batting eye, and for inside bony play he is without a superior. Of course he is handicapped by lack of stature, and his reach is short, so he covers less ground than some other men.

In Steinfeldt the Chicago Nationals have a third sacker extraordinary. His addition to the Chicago club completed one of the greatest baseball lineups in the business. "Steiny" is a heavy slugger and a magnificent thrower. He throws about like bullets, with machine-like precision, as a rule. He is big, muscular and fast. Steinfeldt covers a large area around third station and few balls get away from him. Taking into consideration Steinfeldt's batting, fielding, bony play and accurate throwing, he comes near filling the bill as an ideal third baseman.

Cleveland boasts of Bill Bradley, and it may feel proud of him. Big Bill also comes very close to meeting the full requirements of the third station. On account of his height and reach he covers more ground than any other present day third sacker. He stops everything a mortal could stop. He throws as strongly and as accurately as Steinfeldt. He is a reliable batter fielder, but as a sacker he is hardly ranked with Leach. In Jimmy Collins the Philadelphia Americans have a third stationer who knows baseball from A to Z. Jimmy is a great fielder, but as a batter he is no wonder. "Wild" Conroy of the New York Americans is another great fielder, but weak with the stick. So are Hobie Ferris of the St. Louis and Lord of the Boston Americans. Mowrey of the Cincinnati Nationals is rated as one of the sure enough comers. Little Bobby Byrne of the St. Louis Nationals was one of the surprises last

BILL BRADLEY, FAMOUS THIRD SACKER OF THE CLEVELANDS.
This year he is putting up a great game at third. It is quite possible that he will be praised even above Steinfeldt, Leach, Devlin and Bradley within a couple of seasons. This youngster has a bright future. Watch him. Grant of the Phillies, Shochan, whom Brooklyn secured from Pittsburgh last year, and Sweeney of the Boston are all playing good ball this season.

DRAY'S GREAT FEAT.

Yale's Track Captain Establishes New Mark For Pole Vault.

Undoubtedly the feature of the recent University of Pennsylvania's annual relay carnival was the new world's record for the pole vault, made by Walter Dray, the diminutive captain of the Yale track team, when he scaled the bar at the dizzy height of twelve feet six and one-half inches. This was one inch better than his own previous mark of twelve feet five and one-half inches, which he created one year ago. Cried by his friends, he had the bar put up to twelve feet ten and one-half inches, but here his strength began to give out, and after two ineffectual attempts he abandoned it.

This young man, who stands hardly five feet seven inches, possesses a brand of constant liveliness that has rarely been equaled in the college athletic world. The remarkable feature of this pole vault competition was the fact that three men broke the intercollegiate record of eleven feet eleven and three-quarter inches.

FOR A BETTER AMERICA.

What a County Can Do For Its Court-house.

Although public spirit for public welfare may be as earnest in the heart of the country dweller as in that of the citizen of the large town, there are fewer possibilities for its manifestation. One of the first opportunities open to the residents of a county, says the May Dellinger, is to see that the courthouse is a dignified, beautiful building.

The county courthouse represents the heart of government. It stands for authority, for justice and for wise administration of the laws which the people have themselves enacted. It is fitting that it should be the best building the county can afford. A pretty custom is to place the courthouse in the center of a large square, shaded by trees and made beautiful with beds of flowers. Benches along the walks afford a resting and meeting place for visitors to the town, while fountains and hitching posts should be placed along the edges.

Many counties have made their courthouses objects of public interest with excellent results.

To Improve a Forbidding Spot.

If you have any eyesore in your town, take a hint from what Chicago intends to do in one of its districts. The triangular space at Twentieth street and Archer avenue, about as forbidding a locality as can be found, being one of the entrances to the red light district, is to be improved this year by the special parks commission. It will be cleared of rubbish, spaded up, sodded and an iron fence built around it. Brick posts at the corners and the gateway will be surrounded by flowerpots, and flower beds will be placed in the park. There will be a drinking fountain for men and horses on one side and a spray fountain in the center. Altogether, according to the plans of Superintendent John A. Lewis, the triangular strip promises to be one of the most attractive little parks in the city.

By NORMAN.

New York.—More vitally affecting the politics of New York state than is even the coming presidential canvass, the McClellan-Hearst fight for the mayoralty of the metropolis of the United States is nearing a close. Since New York state is the political barometer of the nation, the McClellan-Hearst fight becomes vitally important to the politics of the country at large.

New Yorkers are doubtful of the outcome. One thing they know. Even if Hearst wins in his battle for a county there is still a sufficient quantity for local politics to keep the final decision open until the first of next January. Then, if Hearst be counted into office, he will be counted into empty honor because the term of McClellan will have expired.

Hearst knows this just as well as the next fellow. It can be assumed, therefore, that the big journalist is not fighting McClellan because he wants to be mayor of Greater New York, for a few minutes next winter. He is fighting him for democratic prestige or independence league prestige, if you prefer. He wants the moral effect of having been wrongfully deprived of the mayoralty. Perhaps he wants to work the sympathy racket when he runs for his next job. But if cannot be denied that if there be a recent which shows George H. McClellan to have been illegally occupying the biggest chair in New York City, at the expense of Willie Hearst, Willie will have a stronger platform to stand on before the people than ever before in his career.

Why does he want this platform? Only he of the wonderful yellow newspapers can tell. It may be another fling at the mayoralty as a stopping stone to the state capital at Albany. It may be another fling at the state capital as a stopping stone to the White House in 1912. At any rate, it will be a stepping stone.

But the natural query in New York is, how can they ever recount correctly a vote which has been scattered from Mott street to the upper Bronx? How can they ever recount successfully ballots that have been stored in unguarded garrets? And then the average New Yorker unconsciously shows the thought to be farther to the wish. As a matter of fact, he likes Mayor McClellan better than he did at first. McClellan started out as a Tammany satellite. Then he threw Tammany down. They weren't on speaking terms. And while New York gives Tammany excellent majorities at election times with surprising regularity, nevertheless New York likes to see Tammany get it in the neck. McClellan has made good as mayor. He has governed the big city as he has seen fit. He has done a good job. And so the loudest howler for a recount is one William Randolph Hearst, who has been specializing in loud howlers for many a season.

So far over 500 witnesses have been examined and the evidence only tends to strengthen McClellan's case. Of the entire number practically all have sworn positively that neither the ballots or the ballot boxes were interfered with in any way. Commissioner Dooley of the board of elections holds the record for having seen boxes which had been broken and ballots thrown about the door. He began his testimony by declaring that hundreds of these ballots were scattered about on the floor, but under the rigid cross-examination of Charles A. Dolson, special attorney-general, who is conducting the case for the state, he admitted later that there might have been only "two or three."

Scalps, such as surgeons use, have been purchased, so that the young women may perform the most difficult features of their task—that of ripping off the stars on each flag in order to rearrange them.

As the flags used at present are arranged the 48 stars are placed eight on the top row, seven on the second, eight on the third, seven on the fourth, eight on the fifth, and seven on the sixth row. For symmetry the new arrangements will be one row of eight stars at the top, then a row of seven, two rows of eight, another row of seven, and finally another of eight. This, of course, makes it necessary to remove the bottom three rows of the flags as they stand and then saw them on again.

Machines will be used for this sawing, and as the young women are experts they will be able to carry it on just as swiftly as they would the making of a coat or a pair of trousers.

QUICK RETURNS.
The following item from the Modesto, Cal., Herald shows that advertising pays. Don't you believe it? "To show that advertising in the Herald begins to pay from the printer; Saturday afternoon, George A. Crossway left a classified advertisement, 'Dog Lost,' with the Morning Herald. The dog was gone and could not be found. When he reached home, after placing the advertisement with the printer, the dog was waiting for him. That's quick work, and we cite it as only one case out of many. Another man advertised in the Herald through the classified columns, 'Boy Wanted.' The next morning his wife presented him with two. Nothing of the kind had ever happened in the family before—but it was the first time he had ever advertised in the Herald.

Vigorously Moribund.

People say that the English Christmas is dying out. But one has a suspicion that people always talked that way. Anyway, if the English Christmas is dying, it is surprisingly vigorous still.

and is a fast line runner. Some of his stops, recoveries and throws to first are as brilliant as ever seen on any diamond.

Arthur Devlin of the New York Nationals is not a player of uniform excellence. He has "off days" that mar his record. When he is good he is very, very good, but when he is bad he thinks nothing of fumbling an easy drive and throwing the sphere out of the lot. Devlin's batting, however, is a powerful factor on many occasions. Devlin is one of the highest types of a ball player. Don't forget that. He battles with nervous energy, and it is the nervous man who works hard, largely through instinct and not merely because it is necessary. Devlin is one of the hardest workers in the major leagues today.

Detroit has Bill Coughlin. He is not a player of the showy class, but he gets anything that comes near the sack. Coughlin, by the way, is the only big league third sacker who wears a small mitt instead of a glove. His reason for so doing lies in the fact that part of two fingers on the left hand are missing. Aside from being a great fielder, Coughlin can hit the ball. The Chicago Americans have in Leo Tannehill a brilliant and sensational

THE NEW UNITED STATES FLAG AND ONE OF THE MODERN "BETSY ROSSSES."

Philadelphia, Pa.—The honor of making the new United States flag with their 48 stars each has fallen to the lot of Philadelphia women in the United States Quartermaster's depot at Graves Ferry and Washington avenue, popularly called the Schuylkill. During the past month the efforts of these many modern Betsy Rosses have been centered on the reconstruction of 3,000 banners, on which the star rope, sent by Oklahoma will have a place. Captain Hanny is especially proud of the fact that his depot has been called upon to supply all of the flags for the army. Miss Fay Spooner, who is forelady of the department, which will have the making of these flags, says they will be turned out on scheduled time, by the middle of May. These flags will never be unfurled until Independence day, July 4, but the construction must be completed early in order to allow ample time for shipping the flags to distant parts of the world.

ANOTHER TALK TO SMALL GARDENER

SUGGESTIONS THAT ARE WORTH CONSIDERING.

SOME OF THE FAVORITES

What to Plant and How to Plant It to Get Best Results from Your Labors.

Now that spring really appears to be here the small flower gardener will again take heart and put into execution his dreams of having a display of growing plants near his home. The following suggestions may be useful to him and aid in making Janesville the City Beautiful.

Chrysanthemums of the pompon type, of which each plant produces from forty to one hundred blooms, an inch or two across, are many of them hardy enough to stand out all winter in central and southern Indiana. The blooms often remain in good condition until long after Thanksgiving.

These plants are the most capable of withstanding frosts of any flowers. Their peculiar merit is that they bloom long after successive frosts have denuded the landscape. Their vivid colors are so unlike anything else at that season that they are indispensable in the carefully made garden.

The flowers are not ruined until their petals have been wet and frozen stiff. The plants are necessarily used for mass effects as great size is not to be expected. Masses of red and brown side by side make a striking combination. Crimson and pink varieties should be kept by themselves because their colors are variable and they make a violent contrast with the yellow.

The culture of hardy chrysanthemums is simple. They need little care and can be planted in any situation so that the soil is rich. They are best propagated from cuttings which should be made at any time from October to May. The cuttings may be obtained from any florist. They should be inserted singly in pots or sandy soil and as soon as they are rooted they should be set outdoors in their permanent location.

Deutzias
Few shrubs excel the deutzia for showy blossoms in the early summer. The flower clusters are usually white, displayed prominently and with profusion, springing from the young wood of the previous year's growth.

The flowers do not last long when cut, but their showy effect with gracefully arching sprays is well worth enjoying. Most of the species respond readily to cultivation in any fairly good soil, when it is well drained. Many of the best kinds are hardy even in the New England states.

Deutzias should be pruned any time after the leaves have fallen in the fall or during the winter. The young wood of the previous year's growth must not be cut back but the old flowering sprays should be removed and weak spindling wood and decrepit branches cut out. The plants appear to be remarkably free from the attacks of insect pests.

Deutzia gracilis, a native of Japan, is a low bushy growing shrub seldom over two feet and a half high with branches slightly arching from which pendulous white blossoms are abundantly produced. It comes into bloom the first week in June. It is well adapted for planting in the foreground of tall shrubs of similar habit and for massing and grouping at the foot of buildings where tall shrubs cannot be used. This is one of the easiest shrubs to force into bloom in a greenhouse.

Deutzia parviflora is a native of northern China and the Amur country. It is perhaps one of the hardiest species and comes into bloom a week or so after the gracilis.

The Mulberry
The cultivated varieties of this fruit can be made to produce berries as large as blackberries, there being great variety in the size, color and flavor of the different varieties. Some are large and sweet and of a light pink color, and others are black or reddish brown.

The mulberry is a tree attaining a height of thirty feet or more. It is quite hardy and succeeds well under unfavorable conditions. Its growth is moderately rapid, it has yellowish wood and its branches grow thick, forming a good wind break. In a cherry orchard, the mulberry tree is valuable for keeping birds away from the cherries. The fruit of the two trees ripens about the same time, and the birds prefer the mulberry.

The fruit is borne in large quantity, ripening from June 10 to July 15. In many cases a single tree will furnish excellent fruit for over a month. The berries hang on the tree until they are dead ripe then may be shaken off. The best way is to shake them into sheets spread on the ground.

The ones with which the mulberry is grown, the hardness of the tree and the excellence of its fruit make it an extremely valuable addition to the home garden. It has an ornamental value which should not be overlooked.

Hybrid Perpetual Roses
Roses of the class called hybrid perpetuals usually flower profusely in June, then refuse to flower again except at intervals, but the best worthy the gardener's attention.

There are many varieties, some of which are very productive of blossoms after the June crop. The Mrs. John Laing, a beautiful silvery pink rose, is one of the best. Its color, form and fragrance, its long stem and its freedom of bloom are a combination of desirable qualities rarely met with in one variety. It is admirably suited to bedding in groups and masses and can always be depended upon for an abundant supply of flowers through most of the summer.

Ulrich Brunner is a cherry and rose. The flower is large and fragrant, and borne on long smooth stems so that it is very useful for bouquets.

Dear Sir:
Desiring to inform you, that I will return to Janesville after the 17th of May, and continue missionary work permanently. Everyone who gives money or any article of any description will be considered a member. Articles of furniture for part of the mission will be needed as a loan. Every article will be used to the best advantage, or as rent, for fuel and light and the running expenses. CHAPTER III.

Disappointed and somewhat chagrined at Mrs. Armistead's answer, I rose to my feet and prepared to join the young ladies in the drawing room. I had been so interested in discussing Fletcher Boyd's will with Mrs. Armistead that I had completely forgotten Vincent. At first I thought he had already left the room, but in a moment I heard him laugh and discovered him actually sitting on the floor before the fire, playing a species of numble-the-peg with the secretary. Extremely unbecoming conduct for both of them, I thought, and Mrs. Armistead thought so, too, for she spoke sharply to the secretary, who left the room with red cheeks. Vincent, however, was unabashed, and after holding the door open for her, he followed me to the drawing room, without heeding my remonstrances. He seldom does heed them, I may say.

It was on the third day of our stay when Vincent and I had begun to feel thoroughly at home at Castle Wyckhoff, and when Vincent had begun to feel more than thoroughly at home with Agatha First, that I made an important discovery. The morning was rainy, and after breakfast there was nothing to do but to read—that is, until Agatha Sixth came downstairs. I had found her to be an unusually well-educated girl and had given her all my attention during the three days I have mentioned. So I wandered into the library and began to explore the tall bookshelves to find something that interested me. And I found it, though it wasn't exactly what I had been looking for. On the lowest shelf I discovered three heavy but new-looking albums. From idle curiosity to look at what I supposed were pictures of the dead barons of Wyckhoff I dusted the first of the big books and began to turn the leaves. I found it full of photographic reproductions of all paintings depicting the ladies of the family, and on the last page of the book I came upon a picture which thoroughly startled me. It was a copy of a full-length portrait of the last Baroness Wyckhoff, whose second husband had been Fletcher Boyd. The picture showed a slender little lady, with straight dark hair, an aquiline nose, and a dark complexion, the living image of Agatha Sixth.

Stunned by the importance of my find I closed the book, put back the albums where I had found them and stole from the room. I had a guilty feeling, almost as if I had done something wrong, yet it had been an accident for which no one could really blame me. Full of excitement, I went to find Vincent to acquaint him with my good news, and discovered him in the morning room playing chess with Agatha First, or rather, he was showing her how to play, for he was hanging over the back of her chair and moving her hand with his hand whenever it was her move.

I coughed as I entered, and frowned. I am always frowning at Vincent these days, it seems to me, but I really have to. He needs a little restraint.

"Good-morning, Miss Agatha," I said, pleasantly. "How does the game progress? Is Lord Wilford an efficient teacher?"

"Very," replied the young lady, shortly, and both of them looked at me with such insolent hostility that I was obliged to leave the room, murmuring apologies for intruding.

I was rather vexed with Vincent about this; he doesn't show me quite the respect due an older man from a boy of his age. Not that I am old, or anywhere near middle age, but still I am Vincent's senior, and this incident determined me not to communicate my discovery to him. Why should I tell him and put a formidable rival into the field? Not that I'm afraid of Vincent exactly, for I have always found that when the girls tire of his fun they are very glad to fall back upon an experienced man like myself, who has seen the world and is acquainted with Shakespeare and the musical glasses. Nevertheless, it seemed a pity to invite Vincent to enter the lists against me, for I had fully made up my mind to win Agatha Sixth. Not that I am mercenary—not at all. But I had been some time since I seriously considered marrying, and, after all, I thought, why not consider a wife, why not pick out one of these six girls? They were all beautiful and accomplished. "And why not," I asked myself, "while I am about it, make it that one of the Agathas, whose title was the honorable, with twenty millions?" Twenty millions, when you think of it, ought to keep a careful man comfortable for life, and Vincent was smart enough—let him look out for himself. And thus I decided not to tell him of my discovery.

We spent the evening of that day each according to his fancy—Vincent playing tag and blind-man's buff with four of the girls, while the fifth played on the piano, and I in the next room reading Edmund Burke's speeches aloud, while my adored Agatha Sixth did fancy-work. She really did everything very well. Finally Vincent and I took our leave, and when we were in our own rooms and Vincent had wrapped himself in my favorite bathrobe and appropriated my armchair, I was almost tempted to tell him all about it. Just as I was about to begin he spoke.

"Arch, my boy," he said—a disrespectful method of address, by-the-way, but I let him proceed—"Arch, my boy, do you know I like that girl, Agatha First? She's a true sport, and that plump little one with the blue eyes is a piece-a-cake."

"Agatha Third, you mean?" I asked. "I was not aware that you had got any further than our introduction with her."

"Oh, yes," said Vincent, as though it were the easiest thing in the world; "I told fortunes with her all afternoon and played tag with her most of the evening yesterday."

"Really, Vincent," I said sarcastically, "that fortune-telling game of yours is a little odd. Can't you find something new?"

"What's the use, so long as it works?" he replied, watching the smoke from that nasty pipe of his curl upward to the ceiling. "But I tell you what," he pursued, reflectively, "that girl with the fair hair who played the piano, Agatha Fourth, she's a stunner."

"Upon my word, Vincent," I expostulated, "where do you find time for so many of them at once? Doesn't Agatha First feel neglected?"

"I suppose so," replied the young insolent, but I can't help that, I'm going to give them all a whirl—but Arch, ha!—he was getting sleepy and his pipe had gone out—I really do like red hair best."

"I don't know what you are talking about," I said, impatiently—"but, Vincent, I want to tell you something. I've made a discovery."

"What is it?" he said, without the slightest interest, and I changed my mind again.

"Nothing," I said, "I've forgotten what it was."

Vincent rose, and stretching himself mightily, went toward his own room. At the door he turned and smiled one of the smiles he does not often give to men, and I felt that this one was not meant for me.

"I've made a discovery, too, Arch," he said.

I stared at him in amazement, wondering what was coming.

"What's that?" I asked.

"I've discovered that Miss Marsh's eyes are gray, not gray as yours," he said, only half aloud, and disappeared into his room.

"Poppycock!" I shouted as the door closed behind him. Vincent's vagaries are hard to follow at times—surely they are not gray. That I know to be absurd.

My new knowledge, while it robbed the affair of its pungent mystery—for I had decided that Agatha Sixth was in truth the real Honorable Agatha—made my game even more exciting, now that the stakes were assured. I read with Agatha Sixth, walked with her, talked with her, and played chess with her all the first week; and as nearly as I could make out Vincent's program ran something like this: Before breakfast he took a horseback ride with Agatha Fifth; after breakfast he played golf with Agatha First; tennis with Agatha Third; and took Agatha Second out sketching. In the afternoon Agatha Fourth played Chopin to him by the hour. Agatha Sixth he had not approached, fearing me, as was natural. In the evening he played games with them all or retired into the library with Agatha Fifth, who seemed to have lost her head over him completely.

This program he repeated day after day with reckless lack of generalship and yet every now and then, to my surprise and disgust, I caught him deep in his unfortunate flirtation with Mrs. Armistead's secretary. It wasn't fair to the poor girl, and I told Vincent so plainly. We were sitting on the low stone balustrade of the castle—Vincent in riding clothes and look-

THE DAY'S FABLE

Once upon a time, as the third day was making his way homeward along the highway, he came upon the fable, who was lying on his back in the ditch and vainly struggling to get himself out of a bad fix.

"Dear me, but something has happened to you!" exclaimed the fable as he paused and looked down.
"Ah, yes," replied the fable, "I am here in the ditch through the fault of the ox, and unless I get help the worst will happen."

"But I will help you, of course. You don't belong to the ass family, but I should be ashamed to look at myself in the glass if I passed on and left you in trouble."

Thereupon, the ass descended into the ditch, and by pushing and shoving with his head he managed to roll the fable over so that he could get to his feet. This latter was securely erect, however, when he lowered his head and rove against the ass with a great crash and gored him severely in the side.

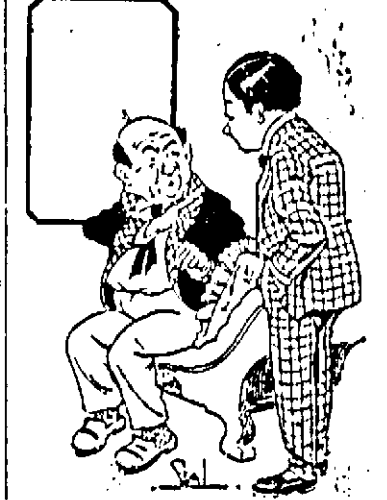

"Ah, but I assisted you in misfortune, and this is the way you repay me!" growled the long-eared victim.
"Yes, but you see that the ox isn't here, and I must gore somebody," replied the fable as he made ready for another charge.

 FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 15, 1868.—Runaway—A double team attached to a load of lumber ran away on West Milwaukee street, this afternoon, coming in contact with a wagon on the bridge. Both vehicles were considerably damaged, but no one was injured.

First Ward School Building—It is very apparent to everyone conversant with the school house facilities of the First Ward, that portion of the city stands greatly in need of a new and commodious structure for educational purposes. The buildings now used for the schools of that ward, would not be creditable to a back woods town. And as the citizens of that portion of the city have paid their portion towards furnishing school buildings for the other wards, it is only justice to them that they have something adequate to their wants.

From the position taken in the council by the aldermen, there is evident by a disposition to accede to the very reasonable request of that ward for a good school building. The position taken by Messrs. Milwaukee and Rogers in the last meeting of the council, was in our judgment a valid one. It is but reasonable that the work should be entered upon with a full understanding of what it is to cost. When that is ascertained, if the amount is within reason, we have no doubt but that it will be cheerfully voted.

Bangor, Me., May 15.—Large meetings were held here and at Bath and at other places last evening favoring impeachment. The meeting here passed resolutions expressing the hope that not withstanding reports to the contrary, that both Fessenden and Morrill would vote for conviction.

Lawrence, Kan., May 15.—A mass meeting, last night, unanimously passed resolutions demanding the immediate conviction and removal of President Johnson and denouncing with political and social execration, such republican Senators as shall fail to vote for conviction.

St. Paul, May 15.—The republican state convention, to nominate electors, and delegates to the Chicago convention was held here yesterday.
